Pharmacy Students won two prizes in the Future Pharmacists Competition

Within its participation in the Future Pharmacists Day, the College of Pharmacy students at Al Ain University of Science and Technology won two prizes for the best scientific poster and presentation of a research topic. The Second place went to students, Ranim Al Soud and Sanaa Skaik, under the supervision of Dr. Mohammad Al Sorakhi from Al Ain campus, while the Fourth place was for students, Aya Al Qasem and Jeema Baheya, under the supervision of Dr. Mohammad Ghattas, Deputy Dean of the College of Pharmacy and Dr. Rose Ghamrawi from Abu Dhabi campus.

The participation of the College of Pharmacy in this day aims to encourage students to acquire and exchange experiences with various health and educational institutions in the community, to establish new relations with their students from the faculties of pharmaceutical and health sciences, in order to enhance the students' skills in the areas of science and profession, and to be familiar with the various theoretical, applied and research aspects, to prepare them to meet the challenges in the field of pharmacy, and to benefit from developments in the health and pharmaceutical sciences and their employment to serve the community.
